Keep the old friends. . .
hold them fast!

These are treasures that will last,
Many new friends come and go. . .
pleasant. . . interesting to know Yet often melt like summer snow. . .

But the old friends who are staunch and strong And comfort us when things go wrong. . .
Theirs is love that lingers long. . .
With them is where our hearts belong.

Of all the blessings Life could send
The best is knowing You're my friend.

This Is My Friend

This is my friend—the first to shake my hand
 When I have found success in what I planned;
 And when I meet defeat, or fear, or shame,
 The first to reach my side—the last to blame.

This is my friend—who often sees my need,
 And helps before I ask with some kind deed;
 Who walks so close to me from day to day,
 He knows my faults—but loves me anyway!

Suey,

Hi there - ya sexy thing!
How's tricks? I don't know what to write to you, even though I know there is alot to say to you. Your a special gal; we shall always be best friends, unless I'm exiled into Cambodia by my dad Fidel Castro. And how's your dad Kuta-Kinta? You know me; you know what I would say if I could write it to you. This is - or was or last year together as students, but not as friends. Gops, its take gettin' to sentimental & serious, I gotta stop it now before some serious events take place. I love ya lots, but not as you know I am going - I doubt I wanted to fill up this whole page but the way I am going - I doubt I wanted I shall send ya a post card or two during the next year to tell you that I am still lickin' away. We should pick the guys by this summer if we could do something fun, even with Clifford ma-ma eh? The Mustard See ya again? Can we ever go back to the authentic truck stop (the Mustard See ya again? Can we hub, can we? Great!! This year has been a blast eh, but a little weak too - If I ever got hit by a diesel truck, I trust you to drive me to the hospital.
I trust you with my life - your a real friend. If you don't come back That's kosher, cuz remember I am strange, so are you. Two birds of a feather, Don't forget all the times our two gangs (now merged) take care of your self -
The wild things we have done together. They sexy thing, what can I say to you
